

We deserve a public transit system we can be proud of – and count on every day.

Bill Humphrey is ready to support the new T management in the House to commit resources equitably to get us on track:

- Hire more workers: Insufficient pay to hire and retain workers has led to operator shortages, meaning canceled trips, delays, and crowding. (WBUR, 7/3/24)
- Invest in system maintenance: The state is still behind on investing in routine maintenance, not to mention a decades-long backlog. When we don't invest, we fall behind and suffer the consequences in service cancellations and replacement shuttles. (GBH News, 1/26/24; Trains Magazine, 11/16/23)
- Expand service, instead of cutting service and hiking fares: To get people out of their cars, control congestion, and green our transport sector, we need to give more communities frequent, reliable, accessible trains & buses. The Green Line can and must add rider capacity. (Boston.com, 6/23/21)

“My dad was a career public transit planner for Massachusetts, and all our family vacations when I was growing up were to visit other cities’ transit systems. I know we can do much better here. Our communities, workers, and businesses need reliable service.”

– Bill

Massachusetts can be on the cutting edge of building a livable world.

Bill Humphrey wants the Massachusetts House to support Gov. Healey in seizing the day on our environmental crises:

- Resilience: Invest in inland & coastal flood control, including wetland and woodland restoration to manage stormwater
- Transportation: Prioritize electrification & mass transit more
- Utilities: Authorize strong regulations to protect consumers from utility practices; end incentives for fossil fuel energy
- Decarbonization: Support electrification & other renewables for consumers & businesses; upgrade grid resilience & capacity
- Make Boston area a Green Hub: Capitalize a public bank for green projects; build 200K green homes near transit by 2030
- Plastics: Regulate and reduce plastics at the producer level
- Green New Deal: Create good-paying, unionized, environmental justice jobs cleaning up our air & water

“If you look at Bill’s public service record it is exemplary of a person who is passionate about the issues that society faces daily – environmental protection policy, an improved transportation system, affordable housing, and social equality, justice, and opportunity. Bill Humphrey is an environmental champion and progressive advocate for curbing climate change.”
